Victory in Temptation

HOW SOLDIERS OF CHRIST CAN BE OVERCOMERS

By Envoy David Shankland, Toronto Temple

NO ONE escapes temptations. They are the common lot of men. Of course, many of the temptations that come to one after conversion, are dissimilar in nature to those he previously experienced. Many Christians express themselves as believing that freedom from temptations would mean the acme of happiness. Yet God's Word says: "Count it all joy when ye fall into divers (manifold) temptations, knowing this that the trial of your faith worketh patience."

We may be assured that we will be tempted as long as we live; but, if the temptations are properly met, they will prove of much benefit in promoting our growth in grace. Temptations should do for the Christian what physical exercise does for the athlete. They should assist lives of inconsistent professors, by suffering persecution for righteousness sake, by bereavement.

(2) Temptations that lead to sins of omission, such as neglecting to confess Christ to our intimates, neglecting to regularly attend a place of worship, ignoring one's responsibility regarding the seeking and receiving of more spiritual light, failing to devote sufficient time to secret communion with God and the study of His Word.

(3) Temptations that urge to sins of commission, to do that which one knows to be wrong, or that which is doubtful, and the doubtful thing is always wrong.

The agencies at work to ensnare one are, of course, the world, the flesh and the devil. The world, with all its allurements, the flesh, with all its desires, the Devil, with all his powers of deception. They attack us by attempting to control our thoughts; through many of the things we hear, through much we see, and by playing upon our emotions.

Victors on the Field

One is apt to become timid, if he seriously considers the enemies arrayed against him and forgets that their power over God's children is broken. We should rejoice, therefore, that we are supplied with the complete armor of God so that we may be able to stand our ground to the end, and remain Victors on the field" (Weymouth).

The weaknesses that betray Christians are caused by an enemy within—that principle of sin that is called the carnal mind, that "is not subject to the law of God, neither indeed can be." So long as we harbor the enemy there will be fierce struggles—some victories and some defeats—and, unless he is ejected by the Holy Spirit taking full possession of our hearts, there will follow prolonged periods of discouragement and, finally, backsliding.

The sure safeguard against the snares of the temptations that all must face, is a clean heart with Christ enthroned as King. Then temptations are not so formidable. Some of them may seem veritable giants in strength, but, like David, we can face and overcome our Goliaths, if, like him, we have implicit faith, and that we will have, if our hearts are right with God. A clean heart cannot help trusting God.

It was David's faith in God that made him take his sling and stone and face the apparently invincible giant; and our faith in Him will enable us to take up our weapons of warfare (the Sword of the Spirit and the Shield of Faith) and triumph quite as

Thoughts about Happiness—

It cannot be bought; if it could, the rich would all be happy.

It is not confined to the physically well. Many with perfectly healthy bodies are miserable.

It is neither an aristocrat nor a commoner.

It stays longest with those who are busied doing something for others.

It loves to come into a home where there is little criticism, fault-finding, egotism, and jealousy.

Best of all, Happiness is found with all those whose faith in God and love for men keeps them from the black sin of all ages, Selfishness.

Half the world is on the wrong scent in the pursuit of happiness. They think it consists in having and getting and in being served by others. It consists in giving, and in serving others!

easily and simply as David did.

Some of the giants that the soldiers of Christ must face to-day, are more dangerous than Goliath was, but any simple child of God will overcome them if he fights in the strength of his King. What wonderful feats we can perform in His name. He said that, if we have faith as a grain of mustard seed, we can remove mountains.

Temptations are not legitimate excuses for defeat. They offer us opportunities to prove our loyalty to, and our trust in, our Lord. If we are faithful, He will demonstrate, through us, His glorious power to preserve, as well as to refine, His own.

BEING CONTENT

He that is down need fear no fall,
He that is low, no pride;
He that is humble, ever shall
Have God to be his Guide.

I am content with what I have,
Little be it or much;
And, Lord, contentment still I crave,
Because Thou savest such.

Fulness to such a burden is
That go on pilgrimage;
Here little, and hereafter bliss.
Is best from age to age.

—John Bunyan

AND HANDS

Struggling against an attack of "preacher's fright," a young Officer again, and yet again, reiterated the latter part of her text—"had a mind to work"—until finally, in an effort to help the speaker out of her difficulty, a veteran comrade exclaimed, "Thy mind is alright, set their hands to work."

What a thought-provoking utterance! The uniting of mind and hands. Yes! we thank God for unimpaired minds; minds that can grasp the fact that the Devil is making a fierce onslaught against the Kingdom of God, minds that are keenly alive to the need for workers, and minds fired by the desire to work in the establishing of His Kingdom on earth, and then we are forced to admit that though we "have a mind to work," we accomplish little because we fail to make use of our hands as well as our minds.

May our Great Captain teach us the art of enlisting the aid of our minds, hands, feet—all our powers—in order that we each may build substantially and well for the Blessed Kingdom of our God.—David.

IF CHRIST CAME

One day the girls of the village were talking about religion. They felt that it would be so easy to be good if Christ could be seen. If only He would come into their village, and live among them, as He had lived in Nazareth.

Then the old lady in the chimney corner spoke, and there was rapture in her voice: "My dears, I think I have seen Him every day for five and thirty years."

touch with their Master that they did not think of others' faults and failings. The possibility of their own sin alone filled their hearts. When we truly say, "Lord, is it I?" the Saviour Himself will point out not only our sin but also His marvellous power of delivering us from that sin.

Saturday, October 5th, Matthew 26: 31-46.

"Though all men shall be offended because of Thee, yet will I never be offended." When men boast in such a way the boast is in itself a fall. With his heart in this state Peter had already denied his Lord in spirit, though the lip denial came later. A big outward sin generally has a big heart-fall behind it.

Sunday, September 29th, Matthew 24: 42-51

"Watch, therefore." Have you ever expected your parents home from a journey and been waiting with clean hands and neat clothes to welcome them? Then you know something of the pleasure and hope of watching. Expectation warms the heart and enables us to bear the burdens and difficulties of the present. We know that when the great Loved One comes our troubles will be at an end in the joy of His Presence.

DO YOU BELIEVE IN GOOD ROADS?

MORE people than ever are sharing the joys of the road. Those who cannot travel by private car can journey by luxurious public motor coaches. The nation, for more reasons than one, is greatly interested in good roads.

John the Baptist was also a great agitator for good roads. He was "the voice of one crying in the wilderness, Prepare ye the way of the Lord; make His paths straight. Every valley shall be exalted, and every mountain and hill shall be made low; the crooked shall be made straight, and the rough places plain."

All road lovers should get acquainted with John the Baptist. He is the patron saint of the Good Roads Campaign. He is the prophet who pointed to Jesus and said, "Behold the Lamb of God, which taketh away the sin of the world."

Monday, September 30th, Matthew 25: 1-13

"They that were ready went in with Him to the marriage and the door was shut." The door of opportunity is open to us all. Those who are ready, go through it with Him, and then the door is closed. Let us ask Him, therefore, to keep us ever ready, watching and waiting, otherwise we may come to the door of service when it is too late!

Tuesday, October 1st, Matthew 25: 14-30.

"Thou hast been faithful over a few things." A wise man has said, "A little thing is a little thing, but faithfulness in little things is a very great thing." Can you be depended on in your home, or wherever you work to be faithful in the small, "behind-the-scenes" duties? God takes notice of these hidden things, because He does not judge by the size of a thing as we do.

Wednesday, October 2nd, Matthew 25: 31-46

"Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these . . . ye have done it unto Me." This parable refers in the first instance to the heathen nations who have not heard the Gospel, and who will be judged according to their light and opportunity. The righteous had forgotten their good deeds, so we see that they were not done for the purpose of winning merit. They showed a beautiful spirit of unselfishness in their daily lives. The others were judged because they blindly neglected the opportunities all around them.

Thursday, October 3rd, Matthew 26: 1-13

"An alabaster box of very precious ointment." The disciples thought Mary very wasteful. The world still says the same when some talented, beautiful life is poured out for this Master's service. But He, who never sought anything for Himself, saw Mary's deep love behind the gift, and valued it accordingly. Do you love to give the very best you have to Christ?

Friday, October 4th, Matthew 26: 14-30.

"Lord, is it I?" They were so in (Continued on column 4)

ON THE MORNING following their splendid reception in Halifax, the General and Mrs. Higgins boarded the train for North Sydney, there to take boat for Newfoundland. With them were Commissioner and Mrs. Maxwell, Colonel Pugmire, Lt.-Colonel Saunders, Major Taylor and the writer. A long and fatiguing two-day journey lay before them ere they reached St. John's, the capital city of the Sea Girt Isle, where the Salvation hosts from its one hundred and six widely scattered Corps were gathering for the Annual Congress with eager hopes and high expectations. The monotony of the long ride was broken, somewhat by receptions to the General at various cities, by transference from train to steamer, and by a wreck on the line which held up the train for fourteen hours in the very centre of Newfoundland.

Truro is a thriving city of Nova Scotia, some two hours run from Halifax, and as the General's train ran into the station a large throng of Salvationists and friends were observed on the platform waiting to greet him. Adjutant Kirbyson, the Corps Officer, introduced His Worship Mayor Dunbar to the General as he stepped off the train. His Worship assured our Leader of the very warm regard the citizens had for the Army and wished him every success in his Canadian Campaign.

The General then mounted a decorated stand which had been placed on the station platform, and to the eager crowd that gathered around spoke earnestly of the things that matter most in life.

At New Glasgow, the most important town in the coal mining area of Northern Nova Scotia, another large crowd was awaiting the General's arrival and His Worship Mayor Hamilton introduced by Adjutant Woolcott, the Corps Officer, warmly greeted our Leader on behalf of the citizens.

Crossing the Straits of Canso on the train ferry, the beautiful Cape Breton region, with its fairylike panorama of mountains and lakes was reached that afternoon. The scenic wonders unfolded as the train wound among the vales and hills drew forth many exclamations of delight from the General.

At North Sydney

It had been arranged by Brigadier Knight, the Cape Breton Divisional Commander, that an Open-air meeting was to be held at North Sydney, the steamship officials kindly consenting to delay the departure of the boat in order to make this possible. What a sight met the General's eyes as he arrived at the bandstand, and looked over the scene before him! All around was a close-packed crowd of people, many uniformed Salvationists being conspicuous among them, and Band instruments shining in the brilliant light of the electric lamps. From a nearby flagpole fluttered the Union Jack and the Army Colors, and over the bandstand which was gaily decorated with bunting and flowers, was a large sign reading as follows: "Cape Breton welcomes General and Mrs. Higgins. God speed them."

On the stand was His Worship Mayor Pilkington and many of the clergy and leading people of the town, while others were in their autos on the outskirts of the assembled throng.

After the Rev. Mr. Campbell had led in prayer, the Mayor extended a civic welcome to the General, referring to him as the Leader of the mightiest Army known.

"We are trying to decrease our military armies to-day," said His Worship, "but there is one Army we want to see increase and that is The Salvation Army."

The Commissioner and Colonel Pugmire sang together "I have pleasure in His service," and the large crowd took up the refrain in hearty fashion.

The General's Appeal

Then the General was on his feet and addressing the people with the fire and earnestness of a prophet of God.

"I have looked on the wonderful scenery of your land to-day," he said, "and my heart has been cheered and my sentiment stirred ting to His will."

An appeal was made by the Commissioner to Salvationists and Army friends to re-consecrate their lives to the great purpose of extending God's Kingdom, and led by Colonel Pugmire, the great throng sang reverently:

"Were the whole realm of nature mine,

That were a present far too small,
Love so amazing, so divine,
Shall have my soul, my life, my all."

A Scene of Consecration

In response to the Colonel's request, hundreds of hands were raised to signify that a real consecration was made.

The Rev. Mr. Reed closed with prayer.

A pretty little incident then occurred when a Life-Saving Guard came forward and presented Mrs. Higgins with a beautiful bouquet of flowers. It was symcalled forth the General's admiration. It reminded him of Norway.

Turning inland the route lay through the Topsail region and all through the afternoon the landscape impressed one as of a rugged beauty peculiar to Newfoundland.

Good progress was made until Millertown Junction was reached and then word came that there had been an accident a few miles further on and that the line would be blocked for some hours. An ore train from Buchan's Mines, it appeared, had run off the rails and the track had been torn up for some distance.

"It's an Ill Wind —"

But they say it's an ill wind that blows nobody any good and one Salvationist, at any rate, profited by the delay.

Close by the station lived a good brother and his wife and noting that Army Officers were on the train he came to ask if someone would go to his house and dedicate his baby.

Lt.-Colonel Dickerson went to perform this service, accompanied by Lt.-Colonel Saunders and the writer, and the hearts of the parents in this humble home were made glad and they were spiritually uplifted by the simple little ceremony that took place when Eric Reid was given to God.

Word came through from the scene of the derailment that a gang of men were busy getting the cars on the track again and repairing the break and that probably six hours might elapse before the train could get through.

Waiting Expectantly

At Grand Falls, only twenty-two miles distant, it had been arranged for the General to address the people who would gather there to see him. Lt.-Colonel Dickerson got Commandant Marsh, the District Officer, on the phone and learned that hundreds of folk were waiting expectantly at the station, many of them having lost a shift at the paper mills in order not to miss this treat, and others having walked for miles through the woods from outlying settlements.

Oh, if a motor car were only available to run the General down to Grand Falls. But no cars are ever seen in that part of the country, for there are no roads. All around as far as the eye could reach was a trackless wilderness. There was nothing to do but wait patiently till the one means of communication between the settlements of the interior was clear.

The night wore on and further reports were not at all encouraging regarding an early start. The train moved a few miles nearer the scene of the wreck and stopped in the midst of a dense forest.

The quietness and stillness was conducive at any rate to a good night's rest. In the morning the train was still in the same place, and not until nine o'clock did the wheels start moving. The delay had lasted for fourteen hours.

The General's arrival at Truro, where he was greeted by Mayor Dunbar as he stepped off the train as I contemplate God's wonderful handiwork in the natural creation. But I have one sorrow and that, while all around is bright and glad, one part of God's creation seems to mar the beauty of the whole. Man has sinned and come short of the glory of God. Oh that I could influence some hearts here to-night to be in harmony with the beauty of Nature all around them in this lovely corner of the earth."

He went on to tell how The Army is doing its best to bring this about, and pleaded with his hearers not to let money-making, pleasure-seeking, or any of the devil's lures keep them from finding the greatest treasure in the world—Salvation from all sin.

Mrs. Higgins also spoke out of a full heart, telling of the joys of a life of service for God and the true happiness to be found in submit-holical of the kind and generous thoughts and feelings which the people of Cape Breton entertain towards The Army and its Leaders.

Embarking on the S.S. "Caribou," the General and party had a calm, and pleasant hundred mile trip across to Port Aux Basques, which was reached early next morning. The ships in the harbour and the buildings by the docks were gay with flags in honor of the General's visit.

Lt.-Colonel Dickerson, the Sub-Territorial Commander, joined the party at this Newfoundland port.

The Governor's private coach had been kindly placed at the General's disposal for his journey of 546 miles to St. John's, and shortly after landing on Newfoundland soil the trip began.

FIRST TOUCHES WITH THE DOMINION

Government Officials, Civic Authorities and Representatives of all Classes of Newfound- land's Populace Unite with Salvationists to do Honor to the Army's International Leaders

TWO SOUL-REFRESHING COUNCIL SESSIONS WITH OFFICERS

THE ISLAND OF NEWFOUND-LAND is the oldest of Britain's colonial possessions. Shaped like an irregular triangle, it is situated at the mouth of the Gulf of St. Lawrence like a sentinel guarding the entrance. About forty-two thousand miles in area, it contains a population of 262,000.

St. John's, the capital city, is situated on the eastern coast of the Island and claims to be the oldest settlement occupied by Europeans in the New World. It has one of the wonderful progress, and to-day many thousands march beneath the Blood and Fire Banner which is flying in 174 Corps and Outposts from one end of the Island to the other.

The fame of Newfoundland Salva-tionists for earnestness, enthusiasm, loyalty and warm-heartedness has gone out throughout the whole world.

When they learned that General and Mrs. Higgins purposed to conduct the first Congress of their world tour in St. John's they felt that a great honor had been done them and he required it. The cordial words of His Worship Mayor Tasker Cook, as he received the General on his arrival at the railway station, were reiterated by the members of the City Council and fully endorsed by the cheering thousands of citizens who thronged the platform and overflowed into the roadway.

Owing to the train being delayed,
the public welcome meeting which was to have taken place that night was held the following night.

OFFICERS' COUNCILS

The General's first meeting, therefore, was with the Officers in the No.
11 Citadel. Two helpful and blessed sessions were enjoyed, both the General and Mrs. Higgins getting right into the hearts of the Officers from the start and deeply impressing them
with their earnestness, and their firm stand for foundation principles.

The General emphasized the point that we live in an age in which Cross-bearing is less and less associated with religious life and in which a mawkish sentimentality is taking the place of real fighting for God. He urged the Officers to cultivate the spirit of glorying in the Cross of Christ, impressing on them that the truest supremacy consists in being of use to our fellows and that the humblest service constitutes the greatest dignity.

The final Session of the Officers'
Councils was held on Tuesday morning. Lt.-Colonel Dickerson expressed the gratitude of the Newfoundland
Officers to the General and Mrs.
Higgins for their splendid leadership of the Congress, and Commandant Marsh, on behalf of the Officers, presented an address to our Leader.
At the close the Flag was brought forward and all the Officers renewed their pledges of loyalty to the principles it stands for. Then they sang with deep feelings of affection, "God be with you till we meet again," and the General gave them his parting blessing.

WITH THE MEDICAL MEN

Following the Councils the General met the doctors who are associated with Grace Hospital and spoke to them concerning the hospital work
The Army is carrying on around the world and of its increasing usefulness to suffering humanity. He stated that Army Officers may be regarded as "soul doctors" and that their work was closely allied with that of the medical profession inasmuch as the state of a person's mind and spirit had much to do with his bodily health. He thanked the gentlemen present for their valuable cooperation in the work of the hospital.

The General and Mrs. Higgins with Lady Middleton and Commissioner and Mrs. Maxwell, reviewing the parade of The Army's forces in St. John's most striking harbor approaches in the world, and the entrance, appropriately called "The Narrows," flanked on either side by towering cliffs 500 feet high, leads into a land locked haven over a mile long. Over 36,000 people reside in St. John's, which is the only city of any large size on the Island and is the centre of the political, commercial and educational life of the Dominion.

Among the notable events recorded in the annals of the city is the visit of the Founder of The Salvation Army in 1894. Old timers still speak about the stir that visit caused, and many retain vivid memories of the great meetings that were held and the marked impression made on all classes by the fiery prophet of righteousness who came into their midst
on that occasion.

Beyond doubt The Army was given a mighty impetus in the Sea Girt Isle by our Founder's visit. Through the intervening years it has made

prepared to give their Leaders a right royal welcome.

The leading people in the Dominion and the citizens of St. John's shared in these feelings and it may truly be said that the whole populace rose up to honor The Army and to show their delight at having its General in their midst.

Everything possible was done by the Governor, Government officials, the Civic Authorities, the clergy, the business and professional people, the railway officials and the citizens generally to make the General and
"his good lady," as a poem in their honor put it, feel that they were cordially welcome.

The Governor's private railway car,
the "Terra Nova," was gladly put at the disposal of our Leader for the long journey of 546 miles across the Island and back again to Port au Basque. In St. John's the motor car of Sir Richard Squires, the Premier, was given for his use whenever

Parade of Newfoundland Army Forces IMPRESSIVE CEREMONY AT THE WAR MEMORIAL

PUBLIC WELCOME MEETING IN ST. JOHN'S GENERAL AND MRS. HIGGINS

Accorded Stirring Welcome at Crowded Meeting in Spacious Armouries over which the Hon. Tasker Cook, Mayor of the City and Deputy Premier, Presides

A SPECTACULAR parade of The Army's forces in St. John's was a feature of Saturday's events. Starting from the railway station the procession marched along Water Street.

At the Court House a stand had been erected from which the General and Mrs. Higgins, who were accompanied by Lady Middleton, reviewed the forces. A brave array it was indeed that paraded the streets with Bands, banners and many floats representing various phases of The Army's work. The Bands of St. John's I and II Corps were there, also the Grand Falls Band, which had traveled 800 miles to be present. Many banners bore legends of welcome to the General. There were Officers, Soldiers, Guards, Scouts and Sunbeams. On the floats were groups representing the work being done at Grace Hospital and the Anchorage. The Army's educational work throughout the island, the Life-Saving Organizations, prison work, and missionary work.

The parade marched to the National War Memorial, which was erected by public subscription on the site where Sir Humphrey Gilbert, in 1583, formally annexed Newfoundland to the British Crown, and thereby founded the British Empire.

This is a very fine monument indeed, the figures representing Freedom, the Royal Naval Reserve (Newfoundland), the Royal Newfoundland Regiment, Newfoundland Forestry Corps, and Newfoundland Mercantile Marine.

It brings to mind the splendid service Newfoundlanders rendered to the Mother Country during the Great War and also the sacrifices they endured.

The General, in laying a wreath on the Memorial, spoke in praise of the brave men who had served their country in time of peril, many of them laying down their lives.

He then made an eloquent plea to the thousands of citizens around that they all work in the interests of world peace so that a repetition of war's horrors may not be inflicted on humanity any more.

WITH THE SOLDIERY

Though the Lights Went Out, a Spiritual Feast in St. John's I Citadel Concludes With Glorious Soul Victories

The first intimate touch that the General had with the rank and file of Salvationists was on Saturday night in the No. 1 Citadel, which was packed to the doors with Soldiers and adherents.

Lt.-Colonel Dickerson announced that the Soldiers wished to make a further expression of their love for the General and their appreciation of his visit to the Island, and called upon Sergeant-Major Horwood, of Grand Falls, to come forward and read an address of welcome.

THE PUBLIC WELCOME MEETING to the General and Mrs. Higgins was held in the Armouries, which was the largest public edifice available, by courtesy of the officer commanding. Though it was a rainy night the building was packed to capacity, over 3,000 people being present.

The Hon. Tasker Cook, Mayor of the city, presided and with him on the platform were many of the most prominent people, including Mr. F. C. Alderdice, leader of the Opposition, and Mrs. Alderdice; Mr. W. S. Mon-here," he said, "have been reading of the great campaigns which the General and Mrs. Higgins have been conducting in Great Britain and also on the continent of Europe. There have been huge crowds of men and women and young folks everywhere, but considering the size of this Dominion I think I am right in saying to them to-night that we can congratulate ourselves that such a large gathering of Salvation Army Soldiers should be here to-night to welcome them, and on your behalf, in the way they do in the country I come from, I want to

The Commissioner and Mrs. Maxwell sang a duet, and then the General rose to speak and was greeted with thunderous and prolonged applause.

"I have listened to the Mayor's words of welcome, and to the way in which they have been received," he said, "I feel that these words were not so much addressed to me personally as to The Salvation Army. The Army is working well, striving to lift the fallen and to make sweeter the world."

A Wonderful Work

"Salvationists everywhere are resolved that we will do everything to maintain the traditions of the past for the betterment of mankind. I also feel that this warm welcome is addressed to myself and Mrs. Higgins. I have undertaken a wonderful work, and have entered on a task that will take the utmost of my strength and ability.

"I have been looking forward to visiting Newfoundland, and I made up my mind after my election that the first place that I should visit would be Newfoundland, and here I am (applause). You have welcomed me and have been very generous in that welcome. My heart has been stirred by that very welcome. I will always think of this meeting and of the wonderful reception at the railway station last night. When in the future, I bring these to my vision I will try and imagine these cheers turned into prayers to God whom I must lean upon."

He then gave a descriptive account of the rise and progress of The Army, which held his hearers enthralled and greatly instructed them as to the aims and purposes of the Organization and how they are being carried out.

The Same Spirit

Mrs. Higgins was also warmly greeted. She thanked the audience for their generous welcome and said that from what she had seen of Newfoundlanders in other countries she was able to estimate their zeal for The Army and stated that they were standing identically for what Salvationists in other lands were standing for. "The same spirit is manifest in Newfoundland," she said, "as in all countries and to God be given the glory. God will continue His good work and there will be brought forth good fruit to His honor and glory."

Lt.-Colonel Dickerson expressed appreciation of the many courtesies shown the General and party since their arrival on the Island; the combined Bands of St. John's I and II Corps rendered a selection, and then the Doxology was pronounced.

Rendell, Mr. J. L. Paton, Miss Paton, Mr. and Mrs. P. H. Knowling, Mr. and Mrs. D. J. Davies, Dr. Roberts, Dr. Cornell, Mr. B. C. Gardner and Mr. J. S. Ayre.

The Rev. E. C. French, pastor of Cochrane Street United Church, led in prayer, thanking God for the work done by the Founder of The Army and asking God's blessing on the visit of the General to the Island. The whole congregation then joined reverently in saying the Lord's Prayer.

After Mrs. Lt.-Colonel Dickerson had read a Scripture portion Commissioner Maxwell expressed, on behalf of the Salvationists present, how pleased all were that General and Mrs. Higgins had arrived safely. "Most of the Salvationists gathered-say to the General for you Salvationists in Newfoundland, we offer you our hand, which is a token of our faithfulness to you, and offer you our heart which is an evidence of our loyalty, and you, General, will find no better Salvationists than you will find here. Now rise to your feet and give the General a real Newfoundland welcome. The same to Mrs. Higgins."

The Commissioner then presented the chairman, the Hon. Tasker Cook, who extended a hearty welcome to our Leaders and said that Newfoundlanders fully appreciated the honor of having them in their midst.

Other speakers were Lt.-Colonel Outerbridge, D.S.O., who spoke on behalf of the citizens of St. John's; Mr. R. P. Horwood, President of the Board of Trade, and Mr. C. E. Hunt, K.C. Extracts from the speeches of these gentlemen will be found on another page.

HOW THE GENERAL WAS WELCOMED TO NEWFOUNDLAND

Some Extracts from the Speeches of
HIS EXCELLENCY THE GOVERNOR AND OTHER PROMINENT PEOPLE
AND FROM THE PRESS

His Excellency the Governor of Newfoundland,

SIR J. J. MIDDLETON

As all of you who have followed the history of The Salvation Army are aware, barely sixty-five years have passed since William Booth, its Founder and first General, established his Christian Mission on Mile-End Waste in London. The object of that mission and the object to which the life of General Booth was primarily devoted was 'one of which many years later he used these words: "The object I chose all these years ago embraced every effort containing in its heart the remedy of every form of misery and sin and wrong to be found on the earth, and every method of reclamation needed by human nature." The work which he had so earnestly at heart was begun on a modest scale in face of great difficulties, and it is a signal proof of its immense and rapid expansion under the inspiring zeal and steadfast faith of successive leaders that General Higgins should have chosen the title of "Seventy Nations—One Flag" for his lecture in which he is going to tell us this afternoon of the work of The Salvation Army.

General Higgins has given his great abilities to the service of The Salvation Army with a devotion which has never spared himself, and he has filled the most important and responsible positions in it with distinction and success.

It was said of William Booth that his home was the railway station, and General Higgins carried on the traditions of his former Leader. He has already traveled widely in many lands, but confident of the influence of personal contact and of the importance of securing more co-ordination of effort, he continues his travels. On these journeys Mrs. Higgins, whose devoted work in Social Service has a deserved and far-reaching reputation, is his constant companion and an active helper in all his work.

Ladies and gentlemen, I have the honor, on your behalf, to extend to General and Mrs. Higgins a very cordial welcome to our Island and to this meeting.

THE HON. TASKER COOK,

Mayor of St. John's

For The Salvation Army we have nothing but praise and honor. We who differ from them in some respects have to take our hats off to them for the work they have performed all over the world.

We of mature years know the date they first held a meeting here. It was stormy in London when they started first. It was stormier here. Opposition makes the man and opposition made The Salvation Army. They started from probably less than half a dozen; to-day The Army in Newfoundland has 174 Corps and Outposts; in twenty-one settlements The Army is entirely responsible for the education of our children; it is operating 88 schools throughout the country, and there are 13,000 members. Here in St. John's we have the Grace Maternity Hospital, started for a specific purpose, first established for maternity work, but owing to insistent demands now deals with practically all classes of surgical cases. Another Institution carrying on extensive reclamation work is the Anchorage, situated on Cook Street. The influence of this Institution is extensively felt and it is becoming increasingly useful.

LIEUT.-COLONEL OUTERBRIDGE,
D.S.O.

In recent years Newfoundland has been honored by visits from many distinguished persons who have come to her shores. Still fresh in the minds of all of us is the visit of the late Field Marshal Haig, who led the forces of the Empire in war and who worked for the welfare of his men afterwards during peace.

To-day, sir, I feel that I am on safe ground when I say that the whole of Newfoundland is united in offering to you, the head of a different type of Army, a very sincere and warm welcome. Could you analyse the composition of this audience to-night you would find here representatives from all walks of life and of many shades of belief, assembled to pay respect to you and to The Army you so conspicuously lead.

A well-known scholar and preacher of the Old Country, who is on a short Newfoundland.

The closest contact I have personally had with the work of The Salvation Army was while I was serving in the Canadian Corps in the great army led by that beloved and knightly soldier, Field Marshal Haig. It was before the Battle of Vimy Ridge.

In the sector I talk of, there was a network of trenches which formed the front line system. This portion of the line came in for its daily bombardment as the activity before the battle increased. There, at a central point, was to be found open day and night, often subjected to heavy fire and always subjected to the discomforts and dangers of the visit here, referred to Newfoundland, as it strikes the stranger at this time of year, as a smiling and beautiful land.

I think that those terms "beautiful" and "smiling" can be applied with singular appropriateness to the work which The Salvation Army is carrying on throughout the world. The preacher to whom I have just referred expressed this idea in the course of a sermon by asking the question, "Have you never wished that the bright smile which seems characteristic of a Salvation Army lass was to be seen a little more often in other spheres of religious life?"

We know well that The Army often penetrates the dark places which seldom see light; we know that the faith which inspires The Salvation Army produces a practical form of Christianity, which all citizens the world over may well emulate; we have good cause to be glad that we have a strong force of this Army amongst us—forming an integral part of the citizenship of front line, a Salvation Army outpost. This outpost served the tired soldiers with much-needed comforts, and often a cheery exchange of words between men who shared in common the conditions of active service in the line.

A parallel may surely be drawn between that work of The Salvation Army during the war, and the greater work which they carry on to-day.

To-day your great band of Soldiers are to be found all over the world in the front line, spreading Christianity, coupling their teaching with the welcome smile and the helping hand. As long as The Salvation Army hold ever before them their great ideals, continuing to put them into practice in the future as they have in the past, extending at the same time willing co-operation with those who may be engaged in kindred works, so long will The Salvation Army ever remain a potent power of peace and good-will, and their destiny will not only be world-wide but worthwhile.

R. F. HORWOOD, ESQ.,

President of the Board of Trade

I have to say something by way of welcome to the General and his Staff on behalf of the business men of this country. They demand to be heard, and they say they want to welcome the General, too, and they have reason.

Perhaps I shall be able to show some of the reasons why business people are glad to see General Higgins here, and to know that the work of The Army is progressing.

If we had a number of people of equal eminence in other walks of life, such as science, education, or finance, come among us to hold a Congress of this kind, and to enquire into its subjects under consideration it would be a matter of great interest to this country, and we would pay particular attention to what they were doing, but I hold that the matters which concern this Congress are higher than any of these.

The higher matters which the Congress has to deal with are of value to the business people. There was a time not long ago when we used to say: "Business is business," and of course the co-equivalent of that was "Religion is religion." The stress of life and the burden of life have taught us there is no such thing as keeping business and religion apart. It is not like a line in Kipling's "East and West": "Never the twain shall meet," but the question is: Can you divorce the twain? We are finding every day these superior values have to be considered when we deal with business matters. This is a great country we are living in. General Higgins will discover that more and more. He will find a very fine people here. We say that without any immodesty. He will find a country of great resources. We have inexhaustible fisheries: the cod fishery, the seal fishery, the salmon fishery and other fisheries. Sometimes the fisheries fail, sometimes the ocean doesn't act as it does at other times. Perhaps if it is a good fishery the markets are overstocked and people are depressed, and this is the kind of thing that bears heavily upon men's hearts and lives.

Again, let me say, I don't know of any other country in which conditions of climate and soil combine to make such a wonderful wealth of growth. Sometimes the crops fail; sometimes we get too much water and sometimes not enough. At other times the mines fail, and we all know how difficult it is for the lumbermen to make two ends meet; so, General, we have to think of these higher values. I suppose it must have been all these St. Paul was thinking of when he said there were three values. These three values were not the fishery, or farming, or mining, but faith and hope and love.

These are the values I take it this Congress is going to consider. This Congress is going to give consideration to the ways and means whereby men and women can use these three values to better advantages. How could we conduct the fishery without faith? If the fishery fails this year, we hope it will be better next year. How could we run our businesses without hope? Love, not the sloppy kind you find in cheap novels, not the kind you see depicted on the screen in movies, the love that helps us to work with each other; this is the kind of thing.

This Congress will, it is hoped, be able to find ways and means whereby these three great values—faith, hope and love—may be the better and the more easily woven into our daily lives. If they can do this the coming of the General will be a great blessing to Newfoundland and its people.

INTERNATIONAL PARS

Through the torrential rains of the past few weeks the Porridge Kitchen at Ping Ti Ch'uan, China, has suffered much damage. This has entailed a good deal of labor for the Officer in charge, Captain Chao Lin-yen, who in spite of these untoward circumstances, and in addition to his duties in connection with his Corps, is feeding 1,660 famine sufferers a day.

Among the pictures recently acquired by the National Portrait Gallery is a drawing of the Founder by Stephen Reid. It is signed by the Founder.

Iceland, although minus a Training College or Principal as yet, has three Cadets who, by permission from London, are to be trained in their own land simultaneously with their English comrades. Distance and expense have made this course necessary.

Although considerably advanced in years, Commissioner and Mrs. Ogrim of Sweden, continue to be very active. When the General visited Sweden to conduct the Annual Territorial Congress, the veteran Commissioner led one of the welcome meetings.

Lt.-Commissioner and Mrs. Palstra, who have been furloughing in Australia, have now returned to their duties in the Dutch East Indies, where the Commissioner is again busy with the responsibilities of a Territorial Command.

Summer Camps have been conducted for Young People in each Division of the Western U.S.A. Territory this year.

IN AN OLD-WORLD TOWN OF HOLLAND

Army Work is Flourishing

IN THE HEART of wonderful forest-land, between Amsterdam and Utrecht, lies the charming old-world town of Baarn, where the General and Mrs. Higgins conducted Holland's great Field Day recently.

It is famous as the residence of the Queen-Mother, and Her Majesty's beautiful house is at once the envy and admiration of every English visitor. About it there is the quiet simplicity of Holland, that absence of ostentation or excessive ornament which lays bare, as it were, the soul of the people.

The houses is set back in the woodlands and is approached by delightful drives, while round about there are avenues of Lombardy poplars, symmetrical dreams of green loveliness.

For the Salvationist, Baarn possesses more than ordinary interest, for there are situated two Rest Homes (one quite recently purchased, the other an older place and very well known), while scarcely twenty minutes' ride away is the Home for Girls at Bussum, an institution in which the Queen-Mother has always displayed great interest and to which she has paid numerous visits, all of which brought home to those present her sincere motherly spirit. It should be added, too, that thanks to Her Majesty's munificence The Army has been enabled to make greater headway in Holland than might otherwise have been possible.

It should not be overlooked that there is a flourishing Army Corps at Baarn, or that in this aristocratic suburb The Army enjoys popularity and the well-earned respect of the residents.

A Condemned, Bandit, Before Execution, Prays to God

By Ensign George Lancashire, Chengtingfu, China

LOOKING up from our garden the other day we observed a crowd of people hurrying along in the direction of the city walls. Soon I found myself mingling with the crowd, men, women, and children, little girls struggling along on their small, bound feet, carrying their baby brothers. They were jostling and laughing, and manifesting the happy to his execution, was serene and resolute.

On being led up to a green mound, the place of expiation, he made his last request.

"Allow me, please, to bow to the God of Heaven, I have something to say to Him," said the victim.

His request was granted, but so swift was the sword of judgment that before he could rise again all was over. His soul had gone to meet its Maker.

Then followed a distressing scene, a crowd of men rushed forward, volunteering to bury the body, for the one that buried the body could claim the raiment.

Making my way home in a sorrowful mood, I found my mind beginning to dwell on the world's greatest tragedy, which has cast such an

Commissioner John Cunningham, appointed to the command of the New Zealand Territory. He served for many years in South Africa, and was afterwards Chief Secretary in Holland and Territorial Commander for the Dutch East Indies.

spirit of holiday-makers. In a few moments we had all scaled the walls, those scarred and weather-beaten defenses with their ramparts.

If only they could speak, what stories they could unfold. For hundreds of years those walls had frowned down on legions of baffled attackers. Had they not proved impregnable many times against the assaults of hordes of bandits? They had been a bulwark of security for the thousands dwelling within their defending influence. Even during our short acquaintance with the city they had stood between the people and their opponents. Shells and other missiles, however, had come screaming over them, burying themselves within a short distance of our compound. To-day those old walls were to witness a sad scene, for a brigand was to pay the extreme penalty of the law. Within a few seconds the tumbrel came rumbling through the old archway of the west gate.

A Striking Contrast

Many times I had seen the death wagon rattling through the streets, and invariably its occupant had been uttering oaths, cursing Heaven and earth, cursing his mother, cursing the day he was born, and cursing the spectators who lined the streets to witness a scene so abject and sordid and full of degradation.

It was not so on this occasion, however, for amid all the shouting of the rabble, in striking contrast, the face of the young man on the way

Lt. Commissioner Bruno Friedrich, who has been in charge of the Czecho-Slovakian Territory for the past three years, and has now been given the command of Germany. irresistible spell on men of every tribe and nation.

As the scene was again portrayed before me, I could hear again the plea of the dying thief, whose hardened heart had been pierced and broken by the spell of Christ's preaching; for did He not preach His most powerful sermon on the Cross? I could hear again the Saviour's gracious answer and who would dare to say that He, whose attributes are love and mercy, turned a deaf ear to the plea of this brigand who was steeped in crime and guilt?

It would be hard to say what had inspired faith in God in the heart of this dying criminal; but we believe God answers prayer, and on arriving home I found that my wife who had heard of what was taking place, had been praying for his Salvation.

Perhaps the seed had been sown by some missionary passing through this man's native village, weary and discouraged at not seeing fruit for his labors, for "It is not by might nor by power, but by My Spirit, saith the Lord of Hosts."

THOSE ANDAMAN ISLANDS

A Flourishing Colony Corps Among the Convicts

THERE is something so romantic about the name, The Andaman Islands, their locality in the Bay of Bengal and their past association with criminal punishment, that facts regarding them and The Army's work there are apt to be distorted. For this reason we are glad to get from the pen of Adjutant Sheard, the Officer in charge of The Army's work on the islands, one or two facts and figures.

The Andaman and Nicobar Islands form a long chain in the Bay of Bengal, some eight hundred miles from Calcutta and Madras, and four hundred miles from Rangoon. Many years ago a settlement for Indian convicts under sentence of transportation was founded at Port Blair.

In recent years, however, it has been made possible for a long-term prisoner to choose between serving his sentence in an Indian jail or on the Andamans.

It is on the edge of a cleared track in the beautiful valley of Anilket, that the Bhanu Colony has been established, and in 1926 families connected with a large gang of Criminal Tribesmen who had been found guilty of dacoities and had chosen to go to the Andamans, were settled there under The Army care, and now there are between five and six hundred individuals in the Colony.

The Colony Corps is flourishing. Its Sergeant-Major, Young People's Sergeant-Major, and Corps Cadet Guardians are all life-sentence convicts, and it possesses, among other branches, a Life-Saving Scout Troop, forty strong.

The Adjutant, by the way, does not add the information that he holds the Kaiser-i-Hind medal, awarded by the Government of India for conspicuous service among the Criminal Tribesfolk, nor is he likely to announce much about himself from any platform. But such as he keep The Army's name high in our lands overseas.

OLD ORCHARD CAMP MEETINGS

Under ideal conditions, the annual camp meeting period at Old Orchard, Me., U.S.A., swung into motion recently, with a total of two hundred and twenty-one seekers at the Mercy-seat for the two week-ends of the Campaign. Commissioner Brengle and Lt. Commissioner and Mrs. Hoe led these gathering the first weekend, to which thousands of Salvationists and friends flocked. At the Missionary gathering, Lt. Commissioner and Mrs. Hoe, attired in picturesque native Indian uniforms, gripped the imagination, hearts and interest of their fifteen hundred listeners.

An unexpected item on the program which gave further evidence of The Army's international character was provided by Brother Tooney, a chief gunner in the British Navy, a Naval and Military League member and a Salvationist from Cape Town, South Africa. He gave a ringing testimony to God's keeping power on the high seas, under many skies and varying conditions.

The Territorial Commander, Commissioner Holz, was the leader of the meetings for the final week-end. No doubt the campaign will prove a great boon to Salvationism in the Territory. It was truly a period of never-to-be-forgotten blessing.

CONGRESS SUNDAY IN NEWFOUNDLAND'S CAPITAL

Capacious Armouries Thrice Filled to Hear International Leaders—Rousing and Heart-Gripping Messages—Waves of Enthusiasm and Rapturous Singing Conclude Victorious and Ever-Memorable Day's Meetings

IMPRESSIVE AFTERNOON GATHERING PRESIDED OVER BY HIS EXCELLENCY THE GOVERNOR

THE ARMOURIES was again the scene of large gatherings on Sunday. Three times the great building was filled with eager throngs, and at night hundreds were unable to obtain admittance. It is noteworthy that this building stands on the spot where four Army lasses held the first Open-air meeting. St. John's. That was forty-three years ago and the people so resented this innovation in religion that they mobbed the Salvationists and gave them a very rough time indeed.

The marvellous change in public opinion since then was admirably and eloquently expressed by various speakers, men who are prominent in the life of the Island Dominion. The greatest evidence of the feelings of the people towards The Army, however, was the sight of those closely-packed thousands in the great arena, who cheered the General again and again and listened with intense interest to all that he said.

HOLINESS MEETING

The Holiness meeting in the morning was indeed a season of refreshing from the presence of the Lord. The message of Mrs. Higgins was one of hope, showing that victory over inbred sin is possible through the power of Christ. To do always the things that please Him is a very high standard, she pointed out, and one which many regard as impossible in the present age. But to the fully surrendered soul God reveals the secret of overcoming and He has made provision for supplying all the needs of His people.

In glowing words she pictured the possibilities of a life of holiness, telling of its joys and its usefulness, its freedom and happiness, and beyond doubt yearnings were kindled in many hearts for an experience better than that they possessed.

The General's message was a rousing call to Christ's Soldiers to be more daring in their attack upon evil, so that the Flag which flies over the ramparts of iniquity shall be brought down. Our love for Christ, he declared, is measured by our willingness to serve and to sacrifice for Him.

Many responded to the invitation to seek that power which would destroy in them the roots of sin, such as fear, unbelief, pride and love for the world, and make them into real Blood and Fire warriors of the Cross.

AFTERNOON GATHERING

A distinguished assembly of notable persons was present at the afternoon meeting, which was presided over by His Excellency the Governor, Sir John Middleton, who was accompanied by Lady Middleton and Lt.-Commander East, his Aide-de-Camp.

Others present on the platform were Sir John Bennett, Sir M. G. and Lady Winter, Hon. T. Cook, Mr. and Mrs. David Baird, Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Puddister, Mr. and Mrs. Angus Reid, Lady Squires, Dr. D. Roberts, Dr. Grieve and Dr. Blackler, Hon. Capt. A. Kean and Capt. M. Dalton.

The Armouries was packed to the very last seat in the gallery and many were standing throughout the service. As His Excellency and Lady Middleton, with the General and Mrs. Higgins took their places on the platform the strains of the National Anthem played by the Grand Falls Band, resounded through the building and the congregation joined in singing one verse.

Then came the opening hymn,

"Jesus shall reign," after which the Rev. R. J. Power, (Presbyterian) offered prayer.

The Rev. M. Fenwick, Superintendent of Missions of the United Church, read the Scripture portion, and a quartet of Officers sang "Beautiful Christ."

sentiments.

The splendid address given by Sir John, part of which is quoted elsewhere, showed that he takes a very live interest in the doings of The Army and its General. He is convinced that the Organization is doing a most valuable work for the welfare of the people.

The General's vivid description of what The Army is doing around the world must surely have confirmed this opinion in the minds of the thousands of listeners. Now and again they were moved to rounds of applause as the General related some particular story showing how The Army is triumphing in its far-flung battlefields. His concluding appeal that Christians should unitedly face a common foe and fight hard for the conquest of the world for God made a deep impression.

earnest crying to God from penitent hearts, struggles with the enemy of souls at the Mercy-seat, followed by floods of joy which got into people's feet and set them dancing in an ecstasy of religious fervor—such were some of the impressions one received at the night Salvation meeting.

It was a great time of enlightenment and blessing, a time when the Spirit strove mightily with the lapsed and the lukewarm, thawing out the icicles in their hearts and causing a spiritual summer to begin again.

It was a time when sinners felt the pricks of conscience and awoke to a consciousness that they were dead in trespasses and sins and needed Christ to bring them life.

The human means used to bring about these results were the prayers and faith of God's people and the earnest spirit filled messages of our Leaders.

Commissioner Maxwell spoke very impressively, giving his personal testimony to God's saving grace and earnestly pleading with the unsaved to surrender to Christ, whom he extolled as a Saviour from sin, that horrid power in the universe which is stronger than the will of the strongest man.

Mrs. Higgins also delivered a powerful message, urging her hearers to let the love of God conquer their wills and affections and to yield Him wholehearted obedience and willing service.

An Appealing Address

The General's address was one that was particularly appealing to a sea-faring people. He spoke to them about things with which they were familiar—such as ships, charts, voyages, storms, shipwrecks, anchors, compasses, telescopes, taking soundings and sighting land.

All these provided excellent subjects for pointing out spiritual lessons, and the General drove home point after point with telling effect, comparing the Bible to a chart, life to a voyage, coming judgment as a storm, Salvation as a sure anchor and Christ as a safe pilot to the Heavenly shore.

It was a stirring message that took hold of the hearts and fired the imaginations of the people, moving to repentance and to fresh resolves to take Christ into their vessel so that they could smile at the storm and at last reach the Port of Glory.

As seekers knelt at the Mercy-seat, many of them weather-beaten fishermen who had often faced death on the ice-floes and amid stormy seas, and cried to God to save them with loud entreaties while tears streamed down their faces, waves of enthusiasm swept the gathering and the meeting concluded at a late hour amid much rejoicing with all singing rapturously.

"Lead me Jesus I will follow.

Follow Thee what'er betide.

Only hold my hand dear Saviour,
And I'll follow satisfied."

It was a Sunday that will live long in the memories of all who were present at these crowded and impressive gatherings.

Colonel Pugmire and Lt.-Colonel Dickerson, aided by the Staff, did splendid service in the Prayer-meetings.

THE GENERAL'S MESSAGE TO THE PEOPLE OF NEWFOUNDLAND

MY WIFE and I are delighted to be in Newfoundland. We have long desired to visit Britain's oldest Colony and to meet the Salvationists of the Dominion together with the friends who, through past years, have so generously assisted our work.

We anticipate much joy in our association with the people of Newfoundland during the few days we shall be privileged to spend with them. Our one desire is to encourage everybody who is striving to do good, and to create a greater interest in true religion. If our visit results in the dedication of more lives to the service of God and the blessing of mankind we shall be satisfied.

We greet all in the name of the Master whom we serve.

parts of the world," said the Commissioner, "The Army has come to count among its friends many eminent persons. It is my privilege to present to you this afternoon a very eminent gentleman who is a warm friend of The Army. We are honored by the presence of His Excellency the Governor General, and I ask you to give him an enthusiastic welcome."

The applause which followed was a true indication that the audience fully endorsed the Commissioner's

Mr. F. C. Alderdice, leader of the Opposition, proposed a vote of thanks to His Excellency for presiding, and Mr. A. E. Hickman seconded the motion.

NIGHT MEETING

A sea of faces, singing that reverberated like the roll of the ocean's surges, deep silences in which one could hear the proverbial pin drop as the General drove home telling truths,

IMPORTANT CHANGES AFFECTING INTERNATIONAL COMMISSIONERS

The following changes in connection with important appointments have been decided upon by the General:

Commissioner Mrs. Lucy Booth-Hellberg will be going to South America. In addition to taking up the position of Territorial Commander for the South America East Territory, she will have the oversight of the Commands of Brazil and South America West, where Lt.-Colonel Steven and Brigadier Lindvall are in charge respectively. Since relinquishing the command of Norway, Commissioner Mrs. Booth-Hellberg has occupied the position of an International Traveling Commissioner and in this connection visited South Africa last year.

Commissioner Sowton, who is shortly farewelling from the Australia Eastern Territory, has been appointed to the important and responsible position of the Leadership of the Men's Social Work in Great Britain. He is due to arrive in London about the middle of December.

Commissioner and Mrs. Sowton have done magnificent work in the Antipodes, where their comrades will part with them with reluctance, and their presence in London will be a great help and strength to the General.

Lt.-Commissioner Jolliffe, at present in charge of the Men's Social Work in Great Britain, is to take charge of the Salvationist Publishing and Supplies. The Commissioner has been in his present position for five and a half years, and with the splendid help of Mrs. Jolliffe, has made great advances in this branch of our work.

Commissioner Wilson, who has been in charge of the Salvationist Publishing and Supplies for over eleven years, will be retiring from active service. Commissioner and Mrs. Wilson have been Officers for over 47 years, and are well known in different parts of the world. During the Commissioner's administration of the Army's trade affairs in London many developments have been seen, the most recent evidence of this being the opening, a few weeks ago, of the extension of the large and imposing Headquarters of the "S.P. and S." at Judd Street.

Comrades the world over will deeply appreciate the long years of loyal, devoted and successful service of Commissioner and Mrs. Wilson and pray that God's hand will continue to be upon them in the future years.

A DAY ON THE MOUNTAIN TOPS

THE GENERAL AND MRS. HIGGINS

Conduct a Day of Salvation on Congress Monday and Make an Earnest Call to God's People to Climb the Spiritual Heights

WAVES OF BLESSING AND CONVICTION—HALLOWED PRAYER-MEETING SCENES

MONDAY of the Congress week-end was devoted to three meetings in the St. John's I Citadel. It was truly a Day of Salvation, for Salvationists were instructed in the things of God and their spiritual life was deepened, and at the close of each gathering numbers knelt at the Mercy-seat for consecration or Salvation.

The Territorial Commander and Mrs. Commissioner Maxwell who supported the General throughout the Newfoundland Congress gravest importance to the welfare of The Army in Newfoundland, and the close attention given his inspired words and the evident sincere determination of those present to follow his counsel were happy auguries of the quickened spiritual activities throughout the Island during the coming years.

The fitting of God's people for the work they have to do was the topic of our Leader in the morning meeting. He pointed out that while talents, education, and natural ability are very desirable and can be used by God if sanctified to His purposes, yet the essential qualifications for soul-ing address, telling how she had met the Lord in an Army meeting and been transformed from a worldling to a follower of Christ, which led her on to Officership in The Army.

The General's theme was the doctrine of Sanctification, which, he declared, must be kept to the front in The Army.

He showed the desirability of Holiness, the possibility of attaining this blessed experience, and the necessity of it if one's ambitions for the spread of the Kingdom of God and the Salvation of souls are to be realized.

At night Mrs. Higgins spoke of the very happy time she had had with the people of Newfoundland and said she would carry away many precious memories which would help her to pray with a new understanding about her comrades and the people on the Island.

She urged all to let the Sun of Righteousness shine in their hearts and to let their light shine out for the blessing of others.

The General also spoke of the joy the Congress had been to him and most warmly thanked all who had taken any part in making it a success.

He then continued with the topic of Holiness, showing what is involved in walking with God.

Colonels Pugmire and Dickerson conducted a hallowed Prayer-meeting in which God's Spirit was mightily felt. Waves of blessing and conviction swept over the audience and some beautiful scenes of surrender and consecration were witnessed. It was nearly midnight ere, the last seeker rose to his feet with the light of victory on his face and the day wound up in real Army fashion with comrades linked arm in arm, dancing for joy and singing, "That will be glory, be glory for me, I know that His presence will lighten my gloom, and that will be glory for me." It was a real Hallelujah finale.

YOUNG PEOPLE'S RALLY

DAY

Hundreds of Officers. Young People's Sergeant-Majors and workers throughout the Canada East Territory have been exerting every power toward making Rally Day—Sunday, September 29th—an unparalleled success. These are earnestly engaged in a noble endeavor and actuated by worthy impulses. To set a child on the right path is a greater accomplishment than the taking of a city! Christ placed a tremendous value upon the early training of a child and perhaps the most scathing of His very few denunciatory messages was directed against those who should "offend one of these little ones." A worse fate awaited such evil seducers, than to be flung with the heaviest millstone about their neck, into the sea. The work of the Young People's Local is in perfect affinity with the spirit of Christ.

But the Young People's workers cannot do it all! They are merely co-operating with the parents. There is a very definite responsibility which parents should assume—the strict supervision of their children's attendance at Company meetings—and upon its assumption depends to a large degree, the ultimate effectiveness of these gatherings.

The Life-story of a Canadian Woman Officer

CHAPTER XIII

Winnipeg and Ottawa

ELIZABETH next received orders to proceed to Winnipeg to act as Financial Special. It was a longer journey than she had taken hitherto, and proved a most enjoyable trip to her imaginative soul. In the lovely month of June, she boarded the train at the Union Station, and travelled to Owen Sound. Staff-Captain W. J. B. Turner (now Lt.-Commissioner, of London), was there to meet her, and saw her on board a steamer bound for Fort William. On this she steamed across Georgian Bay, and they reached the Sault Ste. Marie locks the day following. Through the canal they passed, and out into Lake Superior. Oh, the magnitude of this lake, for hours no land was visible unless it was an occasional island. The sun shone beautifully on its deep blue waters. Elizabeth spent the time on deck, and thanked God she had eyes to behold these splendors of nature and thought proudly, "This is all Canadian; what a grand heritage is this country to the sons and daughters of our Empire."

At the Twin Cities

After two days and nights on the steamer, they came into the breakwater at Port Arthur. Here she was met by The Salvation Army Officers from Fort William, two young sisters.

They came on board, and in a short time the boat proceeded four miles further to Fort William. The Officers took Elizabeth home to dinner, and packed her a lunch to partake of when she again boarded the train to continue her journey to Winnipeg.

They made excellent speed, flinging the miles behind them. As she was sleeping that night in the first-class carriage, there being no sleeping car attached, a fellow traveller awakened her by saying, "Do wake up, Captain, the scenery is much too fine to sleep," and as she roused herself to gaze from the window, she found they were passing through the Lake of the Woods. There were more than three thousand islands. The moon shone magnificently upon the waters interspersed with pine or spruce covered islands.

"A Big World"

"It is quite a big world," mused Elizabeth, who was obtaining new impressions of distance, and when at about 10 a.m. that day she learned that she was still in the province of Ontario, the old home province received added respect from her.

At length she reached Winnipeg. The day was dull when they steamed into the rambling old smoke-begrimed station, as it was in those days. Here she met a cosmopolitan crowd waiting; most interesting were the Indians with their squaws, the latter with papooses strapped to their backs. There were Galicians, Doukobors, Chinese, and English, Irish and Scotch emigrants, and Canadians all in picturesque or typical costumes. It impressed the Ontario girl. She was met by the Chancellor of the North-West Division, whose Headquarters was in Winnipeg.

Together they walked from the station platform to the main street. At once Elizabeth observed the peculiar twists of this, the chief business street of the city. Her companion informed her that this was due to the fact of it being only a few years previously an Indian trail. Now it was lined with splendid stores and business houses.

Very interesting was this large western city to the young girl. It was at once Canadian yet so cosmopolitan as to appear foreign. She saw so much that was familiar, yet all was new and some of the methods of living and the people were primitive, but progress was everywhere. Winnipeg gave promise of becoming one of the finest cities in the Dominion of Canada.

She was privileged at times to take trips out and beyond Winnipeg during her term here. How the thousands of acres of rolling prairie fascinated her with their myriads of fenceless trails running in all directions, with here and there a lonely shack or a tiny school house. Here it was she first beheld the mirage and sometimes an odd wolf sitting on its haunches.

In Winnipeg, Brigadier and Mrs. McMillan were the Divisional Commanders, and were kindness itself to her. They were followed a few ceeded West if their acquaintance was to ripen into courtship, and his Adjutant's superior Officer was told to lose him. Elizabeth must wait, and so in due time it was arranged that she take command of Officers Corps and district, comprising all Corps in all.

It was but two or three weeks after the great Ottawa and Hull fire, and as Elizabeth's train passed through some of the ruins, she was thankful it was the month of May, for otherwise the suffering would have been much greater.

Here she was again privileged to meet prominent people of Canada. She had an interview with Sir Wilfred Laurier, the Dominion Premier, who graciously received her in a magnificent office in the Parliament Buildings. It was a very short interview, not because he was in a hurry, to the contrary, he was calm and deliberate, but Elizabeth, naturally timid at all times, was so overcome with the dignity of the situation that, having made her speech, and received his kind reply and a contribution, she bade him "good morning" and sped on her way.

On a warm Summer afternoon, she presumed to call alone on Sir Sanford Fleming. She was much impressed by the fineness and courtesy of this gentleman; in short, these men in high standing in the history of the Dominion, kindled in her an enthusiastic loyalty she could not otherwise have known, and their unlimited faith in The Salvation Army was a cause for gratitude on her part, she could but poorly give expression to, but what she lacked in speech making, they seemed to supplement with understanding, and so her calls were saved over and over again from being a failure.

Elizabeth appreciated much her opportunity in Ottawa of getting to know her beloved Canada from the standpoint of government, and if a country's prosperity, success and

Why I am Becoming a Cadet

By One of the New 1929-1930 Session of Cadets Just About to Commence Training in the Canada East Training Garrison

THE matter that concerns me most in life is to know that I am doing the will of God, and for that reason, I am, God willing, about to become a Cadet-in-training.

To a great extent, my spiritual experience coincides with that of the Apostle Paul, when he said, "For me to live is Christ, and to die is gain." Jesus Christ, the Son of God, the lowly Man of Galilee, whose suffering and death on Calvary means Salvation to those who will repent and believe, issued a definite, unmistakable call to me to follow Him, and because I find that true life alone is found in Jesus, I am obeying that call, and that is why I am becoming a Cadet.

As I have grown in the grace and knowledge of our Lord Jesus Christ, the desire to live an unselfish life has become increasingly dominant within me. So much so, in fact, that there came a time in my life when I felt that I must decide, and decide quickly, as to how I might live my life that most unselfishly. For I find, in studying the life of Christ, the Perfect Example, that one of His most sublime characteristics was His unselfish, sacrificial manner of living. To save the world, He left the riches of His glory in Heaven, lived a life of extreme self-abnegation while on earth, and finally paid the supreme sacrifice on Calvary. He could have rendered no greater service to humanity.

In order to be a true follower of Christ, I want, as much as lies in my power, to serve others. And because

I am convinced that Salvation Army Officership presents an opportunity of rendering a life of service to humanity that is unsurpassed by any other calling, I am, God willing, about to become a Cadet in the 1929-1930 Session.

It has been well said that, "Not everything that succeeds is success. A man may make a million and be a failure." I do not want to be a failure; yet I am confident that unless I live according to the will of God for me, I shall stand as such at the Judgment Bar of God. The Rev. W. G. Schaeffer made the following comprehensive statement: "For a man to work for anyone or anything in the universe less and lower than God, leaves him still tolling amid the thorns and thistles of the accursed ground. To work for God solves the great problem of man's eternal activity." I do not want my work to be in vain, therefore I must work for God. The material life is not lasting, therefore I must work for the everlasting, or my work will be in vain. I can do so by helping Christ to build the Everlasting Temple, of which He himself is the Chief Corner Stone; that Temple, of Church, of which the material is composed of those immortal and eternal souls who have been washed white in the precious Blood of the Lamb.

Salvation Army Officership affords me possibilities of gathering an abundance of material for this Eternal Building and that is why I am becoming a Cadet.—Alfred P. Simister, Walkerville.

Arriving at Winnipeg, Beth met a cosmopolitan crowd of people months after the Ensign's arrival by the present Lt.-Colonel Southall, Captain (now Lt.-Colonel) Margaret Stobbs was the typist in the office, while Captain Brigadier George Smith worked early and late at statistics.

The Brigadier's first responsibility was the building of a new Headquarters for Canada West, and with great skill, he laid his plans for a Where-withal Campaign. The Ensign was requisitioned to solicit subscriptions for the purpose, and was only too happy to again work with her former Divisional Chief. In this capacity she met many prominent people who were very kindly disposed towards The Salvation Army, among them being the Lieutenant-Governor, Hon. Mr. Patterson, and the succeeding Lieutenant-Governor, Hon. Mr. McMillan.

In the eleven months which she spent in Winnipeg she raised $6,300 towards the building, and seven hundred for general purposes. It was a large sum for that time in The Army's history.

As the Springtime came round again, it became necessary for Elizabeth to either return East or for her friend Adjutant Brown to pro-security is gained by the personnel of those who govern it, then, from her knowledge gained of them, whilst sojourning in the beautiful city on the Banks of the Ottawa and Rideau Rivers, she felt Canada was to be congratulated because of these men in high places. Not the least contributing factor to this promise of prosperity was the righteousness represented by the Church of God, among whom shone the local Corps of The Salvation Army.

Soul-Saving Work in Progress

NEW GLASGOW (Commandant and Mrs. Woolcott).—On a recent Sunday night we had with us Lieutenant Marshall, from Toronto. Four souls surrendered. The following Monday night the united meeting was held here, Ensign Couvler, of Westville, giving the Bible address. One wanderer returned. Souls are being saved in our week-night meetings. On Saturday and Sunday, September 7-8th, we had with us Sergeant-Major Hall, from Truro. Three seekers were registered for the weekend.—Candidate F. Carter.

WOMAN'S REALM

A BACHELOR'S

CONFESSIONS

No. 1—Lapses of Memory and Their Consequences

I am a bachelor. I have been so for four weeks, and believe me, this state of single blessedness is not so very blessed, and a bachelor's life is not what it is cracked up to be.

In normal conditions my wife and I live together—and very happily at that. But the Call of the Child brought about a severance for a few weeks, and the wife left me for the children and the grandchildren. She wasn't so anxious to go, and at the very last minute assured me that if I would rather she remained at home she wouldn't proceed, and every letter contains the assurance that if I am lonely I've only to say so, and she'll return at once.

Well, there is only a week or two now, so I'll carry on; but if I had known all at first that I know now, I don't think I should have gone off so light-heartedly to the railway depot as I did with the sweetheart of forty years or so. No, siree, not much!

But, to be frank—the fact is, I have consented to write "confessions," so here goes—I rather looked forward to a period of freedom. A time when I could do just what I liked. When, at night if I couldn't sleep, I could switch on the light and read as long as I desired without hearing a voice from the other twin bed saying, "I can't sleep with that light!" or "What an electric light bill we shall have!"

I have mentioned the electric light. I must confess I'm dreading the arrival of the next account from the gas and electric company. I'm afraid to enumerate the number of mornings when I've opened the basement door to give my boots a yell over and have been greeted with a yellow radiance on the cellar wall that wasn't sunshine, but the electric light that had been burning all night. Then the electric light over the front door. Once or twice I discovered that alight when I came home in the evening. And how long it had been burning day and night—goodness only knows. Yes, there'll be some bill this month!

Then the gas stove. One evening I came home and found that a burner had been burning all day and when I went to lift off the lid of the kettle, the little black knob came off in my hand. I wondered what had happened, then I discovered that the kettle had boiled dry and had become so hot that it had charred the wooden knob to a cinder. I was a bit worried then as to how I should make myself at ease when I felt like it. So I took the lid to a hardware store and asked the man if he could sell me a new knob for a nickel. That suited me. The same thing has happened once since, but I worry no more, a nickel will secure a new knob.

On Saturdays and Sundays I am supposed to cater for myself, and on two occasions my visits to the butcher have been rendered null and void—also due to lapsed memory—the overdue condition of the meat rendering it absolutely uneatable. All honor to the adventurous ancient who taught mankind to eat eggs.

Believe it or not a wife has an awful lot to think about in running a home, and my respect for the amount of mentality and concentrated thought required has considerably increased.

Another thing that has been impressed upon me is the vast difference the presence or absence of a wife makes in a home. But I'll tell you about that next week.

Like Unto a Child

Weaving the Strong, Invisible Cords of Love

"LOOK HERE, MOTHER, come and see what I'm doing." The call came shrill and high from out-of-doors in an unmistakable childish treble.

Three-year-old Sonny stood upon the doctest, his face aglow, a little red shovel tightly gripped in one grimy hand while the joy of great achievement shone from his big, brown eyes.

From the tips of his rubber boots to the top of the cap pushed back upon his golden head, Sonny bore the visible evidences of toil, and its stains lay thick upon him. But he walked with the step of a conqueror, and only needed the sure word of approval from the one he loved best.

And his mother, because she was wise, and well versed in the gentle art of mothering, hastily wiped her floury hands, and went out to look and exclaim.

He was digging a ditch "just like daddy," and mother admired its sprawly straggle across one corner of the garden, and showed him where to find a convenient board that would make a beautiful bridge when the ditch was done.

Wise mother! Throughout the weeks that were to follow, she responded almost daily to that shrill call. "Come, Mother, look at what I'm doing!"

And I thought as I watched her returning to her interrupted labors, and taking them up again patiently where she had left off, that she was storing up future joys for both herself and Sonny, for many days to come. Making memories, not only tender memories for weaving strong, invisible cords to draw Sonny gently back to her, when he wearied of his wanderings in the world and proved home and mother best.

For mothers well know that small sons grow up soon. And that the sweet confidence of early days that seeks out mother as the surest judge on earth of right or wrong, and covets her approval as the best of all, soon seeks its solace elsewhere, or shuns her loving eye.

For there often come fitful, flip-pant years, when the young heart loses its first fine purity. And the deeds that are done in the days of "wild oats," are not always fit to look upon.

There are things that many boys are ashamed to tell their mothers, and they shrink from beneath her eye.

Yet, after all, we adults are but children of a larger growth, and our relationship to God, the Father, is very like the needy dependence of our younger years.

Pure souls bask in the sweet approval of the All-Seeing Eye, while others shrink as if it were possible to hide from the One who neither slumbers nor sleeps, and whose eye is ever upon both the evil and the good.

"Thou, God, seest me," are words of comfort only to those souls in whom is no guile. Men whose deeds are doubtful do not seek God's gaze upon them, nor call His fatherly attention to their daily doings.

To recapture and cultivate anew something of the innocent purity of childhood, when deeds be fully open before the face of God, and none need be ashamed to find His eye upon them, would make more men and women worthy of Him whose name they hear. It would equip them with an untroubled mind, and a straight and level glance, to meet whatever comes, upon the field of life.—Carrie Webber.

Seasonable Pickling Recipes

GREEN TOMATO PICKLES

1 peck of green tomatoes sliced.
1/2 dozen onions, chopped.
2 sweet peppers, chopped fine.
1 hot pepper, chopped fine.
Cover with half a cupful of salt and let stand overnight. In the morning drain off all liquid and add the following:

1 pound of brown sugar.
1 tablespoonful each of allspice, cinnamon, mustard.
1 tablespoonful of cloves.
Vinegar to cover.
Cook for one hour and seal in sterilized jars.

UNCOOKED CHILI SAUCE

1 peck of ripe, solid tomatoes sliced thin.
1/2 cupful of salt sprinkled on them overnight.
In the morning drain the water off and add to the tomatoes 6 medium-sized onions, 3 celery sticks, and 5 green peppers which have been put through the food chopper. Add 3 pounds of brown sugar, 2 cupfuls of vinegar and 2 ounces of white mustard seed. Mix well and seal carefully in sterilized jars.

QUICK PICKLES

Pick a two-quart jar with sliced cucumbers, using slices cut lengthwise. Cover with boiling solution made as follows:

1 1/2 cupfuls of vinegar.
1 1/2 cupfuls of water.
2 tablespoonfuls of salt.
4 tablespoonfuls of sugar.
Let cool, then reheat the same vinegar and pour over them again. Cool. These are fine for immediate use. If sealed for winter keeping the second vinegar must be fresh and the pickles must be sealed while hot.

WOMEN'S ACHIEVEMENTS

Years ago two sisters set to work in London, England, to prove that it was possible to reduce the sad percentage of damaged childhood in its earliest stage. It was no more than an open-air nursery school on a piece of waste land. It has gradually been transformed into a kind of fairyland, with roses and birds and open shelters, and all the needful apparatus for healthy exercise for children from two to five years old. Three hundred little ones from crowded and often unsanitary homes arrive each day for breakfast. They reveal in a bath, are introduced to a toothbrush, slip into bright-colored overalls, and learn to appreciate instead of destroying beauty.

The Bar of the Province of Quebec has approved, in principle, the admission of women to the practice of law, which means that at the next session of the Provincial Legislature, legislation will be introduced which will enable women to practice in Quebec Province.

A New Jersey woman has embarked on a mission to do battle with the twin evils, hypocrisy and gossip. Her plan is to establish throughout the United States a chain of colonies in which there will be no hypocrites or tale-bearers. It will be admitted that this modern crusader has no lack of scope for her task and it is one that will keep her busy for the rest of her days.

BIBLE WOMEN

According to the Poets

The DAUGHTERS of JERUSALEM

Thrice happy women! that obtained such grace
From Him whose worth the world could not contain.
Immediately to turn about His face,
As not remembering His great grief and pain.
To comfort you, whose tears poured forth apace
On Flora's banks, like showers of April's rain:

Your cries enforced mercy, grace, and love,
From Him whom greatest princes could not move
To speak one word, nor once to lift His eyes;
Unto proud Pilate—no, nor Herod, king.
By all the questions that they could devise,
Could make Him answer to no manner of thing;
Yet these poor women, by their piteous cries,
Didst move their Lord, their lover, and their King.

To take compassion, turn about and speak
To them whose hearts were ready now to break.
—Aemella Lanyer.

HAMILTON I BAND IN TORONTO

Hamilton I Band, under Bandmaster Wolno, visited Rhodes Avenue Corps (Toronto) district on Saturday and Sunday, September 7-8th. The weather was ideal throughout. The Band held an Open-air prior to a Musical Festival given in the Riverdale Citadel. Rhodes Avenue Hall not being large enough for the occasion. The Citadel was comfortably full, and the Bandsmen did themselves much credit. A nice touch was given to the gathering when Bandmaster Wolno suggested that the Band play a march composed by Deputy Bandmaster Carrol, whose father was in the meeting. This was done in fine spirit. Major H. Ritchie was chairman, and at the close of the program thanked the Bandmaster and Bandsmen for the fine evening

OUR CORRESPONDENTS REPORT CHEERING NEWS OF VICTORIES ON ALL SECTORS OF THE BATTLE-LINE

OPEN-AIRS IN CHINATOWN

TORONTO TEMPLE (Field-Major and Mrs. Ellsworth)—The meetings on Sunday were conducted by our Officers. There were three souls in the morning meeting, and another seeker at night. Candidate Agnes Morton farewelled for the Training Garrison after a stay of three years at the Temple. Our attendances are increasing, especially is this so in the Soldiers' meetings. During the past few months the Young People have held splendid Open-air in Chinatown.—A. Payne.

A DRUNKARD CONVERTED

FREDERICTON, N.B. (Commandant and Mrs. Poole)—Major Cameron and Staff-Captain Ursaki, from St. John, spent Saturday and Sunday at the Citadel. Open-air were inspiring and large crowds were eager to listen. Major Cameron spoke with forcefulness. One drunkard came to the Mercy-seat.—A.M.B.

Flag Retired from Active Service

CHATHAM, Ont. (Ensign and Mrs. Mundy)—We have just finished a profitable week-end with Major and Mrs. Spooner in charge. In the Holiness meeting a little boy was dedicated. The afternoon service was held in the park and the playing of the Band brought a crowd of old and new friends to listen to the Salvation story. A rousing Open-air preceded the night meeting, which was of an unusual character. It was the presentation of a new Flag to the Corps. During the service the original Flag, which brought back memories of hard fighting forty-five years ago, to the minds of not a few, was unfurled. On a pole at the back of the platform hung the Flag that has done service for several years past. As the old Flag was lowered, the new one was raised to the top. The Band and Songsters rendered selections bearing on the Flag. A well-fought Prayer-meeting brought the week-end to a close.—S. McD.

WANTED!

Comrades are urgently required to take part in the Congress Pageant to be held in the Arena on Friday evening, October 11th. All able to serve in this connection please communicate with Major Spooner at the Training Garrison (Phone Hyland 2006), who will furnish particulars regarding rehearsals.

Candidate Farewells

ORILLIA (Adjutant and Mrs. Godden)—Orillia enjoyed very much this week-end and the visit of Adjutant Taylor Hunt. His forceful messages stirred hearts to deeper consecration. The Holiness meeting was well attended. In the afternoon the visitor addressed the Young People, and captivated their minds by his quiet talks and illustrations. At night after two Open airs, Senior and Young People's, a good crowd gathered in the Opera House. Lieutenant Cook, who is home on furlough, took part in the meeting, and also words of farewell were spoken by Candidate Smith, who leaves shortly for the Training Garrison. Following the Adjutant's message, a rousing Prayer-meeting was held in which two seekers were registered.

On Monday a final farewell meeting for Candidate Smith was held, after which, over a cup of tea, kind wishes were expressed for her future in a larger sphere of usefulness.—C.E.G.

SEVENTY SEEKERS AT REVIVAL CAMPAIGN

[By Wire]

Colonel and Mrs. Scott opened a Revival Campaign at Hamilton I on Friday night, September 18th, in a united Holiness meeting. The Colonel spoke earnestly and fifteen seekers came forward. The Holiness meeting on Sunday morning was a heart-searching time, when twenty-six came forward. A free-and-easy meeting was held in the afternoon, attended by a large crowd. At night, in a rousing Salvation meeting, twenty-nine seekers were registered, making a total of seventy for the week-end. Colonel and Mrs. Scott were in splendid form during the Campaign, and delivered their messages faithfully. They were assisted by Brigadier Macdonald and the Divisional Staff, together with Commandant Hurd and the Corps Officers, Commandant and Mrs. Laing.

Twenty-Four Find Salvation

YORKVILLE (Commandant and Mrs. Raymer)—Major and Mrs. Kendall were with us for Sunday. The day's meetings were seasons of great blessing and help. In the evening meeting twenty-four seekers knelt at the Altar, and others by the raising of the hand, expressed a desire to get right. The messages of the Major and Mrs. Kendall were forceful, and fraught with blessing to all.

for the Training Garrison. Field-Major Squarebriggs made this a very impressive service. With the Flag waving over our two comrades, he charged them to be true Soldiers of Christ.

Bandsmen W. Humphries and G. Williamson, old veteran Bandsmen, were the recipients of their Band Reserve Commissions and Reserve Badges. After this the Major addressed the large congregation. There were fifteen seekers.—G.H.F.

WITH THE SOLDIER

In reply the General said that he greatly valued the declarations of loyalty, affection and willingness to serve as expressed in the address. "I will think of you," he said, "as always carrying on and going on singing 'His Blood can make the vilest clean.'"

The stirring messages of the General and Mrs. Higgins were of much cheer and encouragement to the Soldiers, and many came forward to renew their consecration.

In the middle of the Prayer-meeting, as Colonel Pugmire was pleading for others to surrender, the lights suddenly went out.

There was not the slightest semblance of any panic, however, though the Hall was in stygian darkness. The Soldiers kept on singing and praying until some candles were secured. It was a weird scene as Officers and Locals stood along the edge of the platform holding up their dim lights. It sufficed to light the way to the Penitent-form, however, and seekers continued to come. When they got the victory some of them danced for joy, and by the fluttering light of the candles one could faintly see a moving mass of heads and arms. Converts and Soldiers rejoiced in the Lord.

When the last seeker had "got through," and the final "Amen" had been said, the lights came on again.

HOW THE GENERAL WAS WELCOMED

personality" was the verdict of those who met the General. His message to the people of Newfoundland, supplied to the representative of the "Daily News," who briefly interviewed him last night, is a message that will be read with pleasure by people of all religious persuasions all over the country. It is simple, unassuming, and a modest assumption and declaration of the spirit of service to mankind, to "encourage everybody who is striving to do good." The mantle of the great Founder of this now world-wide Organization, has fallen upon capable shoulders. The militant has to be followed by the statesman; and The Army, having won a very secure position in the world through the dynamic militancy of the Founder, there is need of wise and broad understanding to consolidate those many and scattered outposts. General Higgins bears all the attributes of a statesman. The Newfoundland branch of The Army will gain much in strength and dignity from his visit, and the country at large must undoubtedly benefit from the presence in our midst of this great, but modest, soldier of his Heavenly Master.—"Daily News."

TAKEN HEARTS BY STORM

The General who has a very pleasing face and a kindly manner has taken the hearts of our citizens by storm, and it is generally felt he will make a very able leader for that ever growing body of splendid citizens banded together for the common good under the title of "The Salvation Army."

That the visit of General and Mrs. Higgins will result in much good there can be no doubt; a good which we trust will be mutual. The kindly influence of this man of God cannot help making itself felt among our people, and we trust that the proverbial friendliness and hospitality of our people will so impress itself upon the mind of our distinguished visitor that he will take away stirring memories of his visit to us.

"The Watchman" in common with tens of thousands of others extends to General Higgins a warm welcome to this land of ours, where the people of which he is the head are new to slow in working heartily for all that tends for the uplift of the country—"The Watchman."

of music given.

Sunday was a full day; two Open-airs were held prior to the Holiness meeting in the Rhodes Avenue Hall. Commandant Laing, of Hamilton I, read the Scripture, and Adjutant McBain was introduced to the audience as the new Divisional Young People's Secretary and gave a personal testimony of God's goodness to him. Bandsman Wolno, Sr., also spoke of the saving and keeping power of God, and expressed his delight of being in the service of the King of kings.

Sunday afternoon the Band held two more Open-airs, and then gave a splendid program in Kew Gardens. Hundreds of people gathered here. Lovers of music enjoyed to the full the program given, and showed their appreciation by a good offering. The Eastwood Theatre was the meeting place at night, about 500 in all attending. The Quartet Party sang a song which touched all hearts.

Although there were no visible results, yet we feel the visit of the Band has been the means of blessing to the comrades of the Corps and to all who heard them. Major Ritchie led the meetings all day Sunday, and thanked the Bandsmen for their splendid service. Adjutant Bond, of Rhodes Avenue, also added his thanks, and expressed his delight at having his former comrades present, for both Adjutant and Mrs. Bond came out of Hamilton I Corps.

THE GENERAL WITH THE ROTARIANS

The General was to have met the Rotary Club of St. John's on the day of his arrival in the city, but owing to the train being twelve hours late this was impossible. So the gathering was postponed until Tuesday, when about seventy of the leading business men of the city met for luncheon at the Newfoundland Hotel.

Mr. H. J. Russell, General Manager of the Newfoundland Railway, presided and called upon the Hon. Tasker Cook, Mayor of the city, to introduce the General.

"We, of the Rotary Club," said His Worship, "look on The Salvation Army as colleagues. We are doing the same work, in a different manner, yet with the same object in view, and fighting for the uplift and peace of mankind. The Salvation Army is looked on with respect everywhere. They have a smile and a handshake for the upper ten or the lower five."

HOW THE GENERAL WAS WELCOMED

Some Extracts From the Speeches of Prominent People
and From the Press

C. E. HUNT, ESQ., K.C.

Everybody in this Hall who is not a member of The Salvation Army must be very proud of the privilege of taking part in a welcome to the General of an Army that is fighting to-day through the whole world, that is fighting on every frontier in 70 or 80 different countries, and fighting for the uplift and peace of mankind. We are proud of the fact that the General has under his command over 25,000 Officers, all of whom are standing behind him

HON. F. C. ALDERDICE

One thing I like about The Army is that it is cosmopolitan and democratic to the last degree. There are no barriers, none of class, race or creed. Sin, sorrow, and destitution make instant appeal to The Salvation Army, and they never cry in vain. We here in St. John's have ample illustration of the great work The Salvation Army is doing in this country, particularly in the city, where I am quite sure the majority of you men and women here present can call to mind perhaps more than one who has been lifted from the depths of sin and iniquity, who has been converted into a God-fearing and respectable and useful citizen. It seems to me that The Salvation Army endeavors to make particular appeal to these people, these so called down and outers, the human derelicts, drifting aimlessly and helplessly on the sea of life. What a splendid salvage The Salvation Army makes of these human wrecks.

Now this great evangelical Organization which has for its business the saving of souls has its centre in London, and the head of that centre to-day is General Higgins. What a responsibility is his, and he knows it, because he told us so on last Friday night, and what a pace has been set him by his predecessors, General William Booth and General Bramwell Booth. I am quite sure the present General well knows what pace means, because it is the leader of every movement that sets the pace.

JOURNEYING WITH THE GENERAL TO THE NEWFOUNDLAND CONGRESS

moved a few miles nearer the scene of the wreck and stopped in the midst of a dense forest. Not until nine o'clock the next morning was the line cleared.

When at last Grand Falls was reached there was a little company of Salvationists on the platform and they were very grateful to have a few words from the General. A junior presented Mrs. Higgins with a beautiful bouquet of flowers.

We learned from the District Officer that the crowd had waited for hours the previous night hoping against hope that the train would come along. The Salvationists had improved the shining hour by holding a red-hot Open-air meeting.

This day, as it happened, was the General's 47th anniversary of his becoming an Officer and he had meant to celebrate the occasion with his comrades at Grand Falls.

But circumstances decreed that he spend it in the solitude of a Newfoundland forest.

This unfortunate delay meant that the first day's events of the Congress had to be cancelled and re-arrangements were made by wire regarding the welcome meeting.

Night came again ere the train covered the three hundred miles to St. John's.

At Holyrood, some thirty miles out of the city, some Local Officers from St. John's I Corps who had motored out to that spot, presented an illuminated address to the General, bidding him welcome to the Congress.

A Civic Reception

On the station platform at St. John's, a large throng of Salvationists and citizens were waiting to greet our Leader and cheers arose as he made his appearance.

The Mayor of the city and Deputy Premier, the Hon. Tasker Cook, with many prominent citizens, officially welcomed the General on behalf of the city and government, assuring him that the people of Newfoundland felt greatly honored by his visit and that all the facilities of the place were at his disposal to help make the Congress a success.

The General expressed his delight at the warmth of the welcome accorded him and at the manifest tokens of the sympathy and goodwill of the citizens.

He then mounted a chair and addressed the eager throng around him saying that for years he had cherished a hope of visiting Britain's oldest colony and was very pleased to be in their midst at last.

He earnestly exhorted all to seek true happiness in serving God and unselfishly seeking the welfare of others.

Then again the crowd cheered and cheered until the station resounded with their shouts of "God bless the General."

This was the first visit of a General of The Salvation Army to Newfoundland since the Founder was here in 1894 and the people resolved to make the very most of the occasion.

OUR LEADERS NOW IN THE WEST

THE GENERAL AND MRS HIGGINS are now in the West, where, besides engagements at Fort William, Fort Arthur, Regina, Medicine Hat, Calgary, Edmonton, and Saskatoon, the General will conduct Congress gatherings in Winnipeg from Wednesday, September 25th, to Tuesday, October 1st.

Remember our beloved Leaders at the Throne of Grace. Pray that they may be Divinely empowered for the heavy demands of this strenuous Campaign in the interests of the Kingdom.

Though it was the fifteenth address the General had given since arriving in the city, he gladly availed himself of this further opportunity of describing some of The Army's multifarious activities.

Referring to some songs which the Rotarians had sung previous to his speaking the General said that the sentiments expressed were similar to those animating Salvationists. He particularly liked the ideas of service and hope which were contained in some of the verses. The following, for instance, had specially impressed him.

"Keep on hoping for the bright, bright skies
Keep on singing when the whole world sighs—
And you'll get there in the morning."

The Army, he stated, is doing its best in the way of service to humanity, and in trying to create hope in the hopeless and despairing.

The world cannot progress without a measure of hope to encourage over difficult circumstances.

The Salvation Army, he continued, has spread so rapidly because the great idea of service has permeated its ranks. The great qualification of the Salvationist is service—our members are expected to go out and help spread the work.

Some stories of how this idea is being carried out were then related by our Leader who, in a rapid outline of Army activities the world over, sought to show how we are down amongst the real difficulties, tragedies and sorrows of life, grappling with immense problems and all the time seeking to aid mankind to something better and higher.

prayerfully and loyally in the great work that he has undertaken so recently. As has been already pointed out to-night The Salvation Army is a tremendous world-wide organization. His Worship the Mayor has pointed out to you some of the activities that The Salvation Army engages in, but in addition to what he has said I have read somewhere that The Salvation Army provides over two million meals and over one million beds every night. That in itself is a tremendous work for the benefit of those who are not as fortunate as most of us happen to be.

It is thirty-five years ago since General Booth came to this city, and I can remember that he addressed a meeting within a stone's throw from this Armoury. He spoke in the then Parade Rink, just a few yards away, and I can remember his face very distinctly; the face of a working enthusiast; the face of a God-fearing and a loving man. His influence, not only upon the work and life of the whole world, but upon the work and life of Newfoundland has been most pronounced, has been such that it has left its mark and is known by everybody of mature years.

A Notable Event

If you would look at any book of notable events in the history of Newfoundland you will find that one of them was the coming of General Booth. Anybody fifty years from now looking at a later edition of the Notable Events of Newfoundland will find included in it the present visit of General Higgins, and so we are very proud of having a part in welcoming him and Mrs. Higgins to our country.

We express the hope, as has been expressed by former speakers, that he may enjoy his visit to Newfoundland, that he may go away feeling that he has very staunch friends, not only in The Army, but out of The Army, that he may go forward on his tour happy that he has met us as we are happy that we have met him, and that his work wherever he may go may be blessed abundantly, and that just as his predecessors in office have increased the influence and the activity of The Salvation Army, so may he be spared that The Army under him may double and treble its present proportions, and grow to be an ever increasing influence for good throughout the whole world and throughout eternity.

One of the floats in the Spectacular Parade held in St. John's, representing The Army's prison visitation work

I am sure it is the earnest hope of every right minded man and woman in the world, nay more, I think it must be our fervent prayer that God may give General Higgins the spiritual and physical strength to carry the great load that has been placed on his shoulders, and furthermore, that God may give him the inspiration and wisdom to lead The Salvation Army on to greater spheres of usefulness for the betterment of suffering and sinning humanity.

PRESS COMMENTS Wins Popular Approval

General Higgins and his good wife won instant hold upon the hearts of the huge gathering which assembled at the railway station last night to welcome them. A "charming" (Continued on page 12, column 4)

SONGS OF SALVATION

Still There's More to Follow

Have you on the Lord believed?
Still there's more to follow;
Of His grace have you received?
Still there's more to follow.

CHORUS

More and more, more and more,
Always more to follow;
Oh, His matchless, boundless love!
Still there's more to follow.

Oh, the grace the Father shows!
Still there's more to follow;
Freely He His grace bestows,
Still there's more to follow.

Have you felt the Saviour near?
Still there's more to follow;
Does His blessed presence cheer?
Still there's more to follow.

Oh, the love that Jesus shows!
Still there's more to follow;
Freely He His love bestows,
Still there's more to follow.

This is Why

Would you know why I love Jesus—
Why He is so dear to me?
'Tis because my blessed Saviour
From my sins has ransomed me.

CHORUS

This is why I love Jesus,
This is why I love Him so;
He has pardoned my transgressions,
He has washed me white as snow.

Would you know why I love Jesus—
Why He is so dear to me?
'Tis because the Blood of Jesus
Fully saves and cleanses me.

Would you know why I love Jesus—
Why He is so dear to me?
'Tis because amid temptation,
He supports and strengthens me.

Would you know why I love Jesus—
Why He is so dear to me?
'Tis because in every conflict,
Jesus gives me victory.

Lead Fruitful Meetings

DOVERCOURT (Commandant and Mrs. Gillingham)—The old-fashioned Army spirit has been much in evidence over the week-end, when the meetings were conducted by the veteran Officers, Colonel and Mrs. Scott. The Colonel was introduced by Lt.-Colonel McAmmond who was on hand throughout the day.

God wonderfully blessed the meetings, crowning the efforts with success. There were seven surrenders. Among the interesting testimonies heard during the day was one by a boy who had just found the Saviour, and a few words from Brother and Sister Bishop who have each served the Lord in The Army for fifty years.—E. L. Watson.

Visitor from the West

YORKVILLE (Commandant and Mrs. Raymer)—The Sunday meetings were conducted by Commandant Carroll, of Winnipeg. Brigadier Walton and Envoy Alward assisted with the meetings. The morning meeting was well attended. Ensign Gage, of the Women's Hospital, farewelled at this meeting. The Ensign has been a good Soldier and a valuable member of the Songster Brigade.
We wish her God's blessing and success in her new appointment at London. Commandant Carroll gave a most helpful Holiness address.

In the afternoon the Commandant gave a very instructive and interesting talk on "Incidents in the Life of Commissioner Lawley." As we listened to him talk about the late Commissioner, we could not help but feel that God does truly work miracles in lives entirely surrendered to Him. The evening meeting was a real battle for souls. The singing of the Songsters and the playing of the Band paved the way for the Commandant's address. Three backsliders returned to God.

Neighboring Towns Blessed

OKVILLE (Captain and Mrs. Broom)
—We were favored with a visit from a former Officer of the Corps during the week-end, in the person of Adjutant Webster. The service at the Lakeside Park in the afternoon was appreciated by a good crowd. The Band is rendering splendid service, and the visits to the neighboring towns and villages are a source of blessing to the people. The Young People's picnic, held recently, was a great success, young and old thoroughly enjoying themselves.

Backsliders Return Home

HAMILTON II (Adjutant Bird, Ensign Hamilton)—Corps Sergeant-Major William Jackson, together with the Local workers well and were unflinching in their efforts during the furlough of the Corps Officers. The open-air work was kept well to the front, and late open-air
were held after the Sunday night services; crowds of people flocked to hear the message in music and song. Two backsliders returned home.—C.C.

Two Soldiers Enrolled

HAMILTON III (Field-Major and Mrs.
Mercer, Adjutant Mercer)—We were glad to have Ensign Collins with us for a recent Holiness meeting and she gave the address. Two Soldiers were enrolled by a Field-Major Mercer. Great interest is being taken in the Saturday night Open-airs of which different comrades have charge each week.—A.M.

ON THE OPEN ROAD

IF YOU WANT THE PEP-ME-UP SENSATION, JOIN THE WALKER'S BRIGADE

I PERUSED a Medico's dissertation the other day, relative to the salutary benefits that accrue to the frequent users of the pedal extremities. It was absorbingly interesting, and quite timely in this age when the increasing tendency of the human species is to resort to mechanical means of locomotion for conveyance from one point to another.

Fifteen or twenty of the benefits, such as "strengthens the bones, loosens the joints, improves the figure, enriches the blood, sharpens the wits," etc.—were reeled off in dizzy array under the caption "Why Walk?" It wasn't the ad of a patent shoe manufacturer, either!

Ah! I thought, here's a that will come as a sort of surprise to my booming family throughout the Territory. They are doing their level best to give to others the blessed messages found in "The War Cry," and at the same time unconsciously developing their wits, improving their figures (in a dual sense), strengthening their bones, and deriving a multitude of other undreamed advantages therefrom.

Boomers, yours is a golden heritage! Yours is an opportunity par excellence! Yours is a health-bringing, cheer-giving, comfort-restoring, labor of love. Are you making the most of it? An hour or two on the open road, with a bundle of "Crys" under your arm, walking briskly, head well up, shoulders back, chest high—and "Crys" going like hot cakes! What an exhilarating, revivifying it gives one! Say, before you go a mile, you'll feel the glow of warmth coursing through your veins. Try it! Maybe you can launch a Walker's Brigade in your Corps. Objective: 4 "Crys" per block, 10 blocks per night, 2 nights per week. (Revise to suit local conditions). Here's a chance to add some profitable variety to the day's routine. Its a recreation that costs nothing, that is seasonable at

Latest Stories From "The War Cry" Man's Note-Book

A YOUNG MAN, well educated and capable of filling a responsible position, came to Toronto recently from the Old Land. He secured employment and for a time all went well. Then came the hour of temptation. He associated with evil company and the worthless companions exerted such a demoralizing effect upon him that he yielded to the temptation to appropriate some of the firm's money for personal use.

Of course the theft was discovered, the young man being haled to the court as a consequence. The Army's Police Court Officer investigated the case, and then interceded on the guilty one's behalf, with the result that he was given into The Army's care. Thus he escaped confinement with men who in all probability would have had an evil influence over him. A position was found for him by his benefactors and under our close supervision, he is showing every evidence of making good.

Here is another incident, somewhat akin to the above. A young fellow who had come from the country where he forsook a good position, was handed over to The Army by a magistrate only the other day. He had found employment in the city, and it fell to his lot to handle large sums of money each day. He had not been accustomed to seeing so much money at a time and on one occasion succumbed to the inner prompting to take some for himself. He too was taken into custody, and he too was fortunate enough to fall into the kindly hands of uniformed friends.

There is a particularly happy sequel to this story. The Army looked after the young man for some time, and then one of our Officers approached the manager he had robbed and sought his restoration. A bold thing to do! Nevertheless, in view of the fact that the young fellow had made full restitution by this time and also that he was backed by The Army man, the manager decided to place confidence in him once again. So in a very short time he was back again in his old position. To-day he is doing splendidly, and demonstrating to both the manager and The Army that their confidence in him was not misplaced.

A teen-age girl came to Canada from the Old Land some time ago, but was not long in this country before she got into trouble. Charged with theft, she appeared before the judge. Our Officer interviewed her and then spoke on her behalf, with the result that, instead of incarceration, she was deported. Prior to her deportation, a Salvationist had several heart-to-heart talks with her, with the result that she sought the Saviour. Writing from the Old Land she says:

"I feel as though I must thank you all for your kindness to me. I am back in my old position here. I can assure you that I will not do wrong again. I am a different girl now. I have learnt my lesson. She had come a long way to learn her lesson—but, thanks to The Army, her coming was not in vain.

every time of the year, and that results in good to yourself and to others.

So we'll walk to improve our figures, bring them up to a dizzy peak, we'll walk and sell, for it keeps us well.

Such exercise to seek!

The Increasers

Cheering news from Newfoundland this week. A new opening—and ten "Crys" to start with. Well done, Birchy Bay! Fiction too, down there in Prince Edward County, has stepped up five. Tip-top! I have faith for further increases too. Why not? Let us all put our shoulders to the wheel in right good style, and we are bound to
